DE LILLE CHATEAU ANNOUNCES NAME CHANGE TO “CHATEAU LILL”

Classic French Inspired Chateau will operate under Cashmere Partners Management

WOODINVILLE, WA. September 21, 2018. Greg Lill and his wife and business partner, Stacy Lill, announced today that effective spring of 2019, their chateau, formerly known as the DeLille Cellars Chateau, will change its name to Chateau Lill.

The winery, which had been headquartered in the Chateau has announced plans to move its entire operations under one roof to the former Redhook facility in early 2019. “This will be a great step forward for the winery,” said Greg Lill, who remains President Emeritus and co-owner of the winery.

This move also presents the family with a unique opportunity to maintain the intimate nature of the existing property while adding amenities that will accommodate mid-week business retreats without disrupting the day to day wine operations. “With the rapid growth of business in Bellevue and Redmond, we knew we wanted to address the demand for groups, meetings and events that want to retreat or celebrate in a tranquil setting,” states Stacy Lill.

In addition to the name change of the Chateau, partners Greg and Stacy Lill have branded their newly formed consulting business, Cashmere Partners after the wine they have been personally producing since 2004. As a result of their combined 40 plus years of knowledge in sales and marketing in the wine industry, the Lills are now successfully connecting potential partners and clients to resources that are streamlining the industry.

Situated among tall pines on a private 10-acre estate in Woodinville, Washington, Chateau Lill is a charming reminder of the family’s European ancestry that dates back to the 12th Century. The Chateau is owned by Lore Lill and managed by son, Greg and daughter-in-law Stacy Lill, who reside adjacent to the property where they oversee this lush estate.
